

The background of the cover is a historical scientific illustration, likely from a 19th-century microbiology notebook. It features several circular petri dishes or slides containing different bacterial cultures. The cultures are depicted with various colors and textures: one is yellow with small dark spots, another is yellow with larger orange-red spots, and a third is yellow with many small dark, rod-like structures. Handwritten notes in cursive script are scattered around the cultures, providing context for the observations. The overall style is that of a historical scientific record.
